J. Simms Wilson.

THE FARM AND TRIF.

The famous sire, Guy Wilkes, 2:15 1/4, died near Cleveland, O., several days ago.

James Dodge has arrived at the Lexington track with two horses by Oakland Baron.

Tod Sloan, the American jockey, has been engaged by the Prince of Wales to ride his horses next season.

Wednesday J. S. Wilson, of this city, bought three thousand bushels of bluegrass seed from Allie Sofer, of Montgomery, at forty cents per bushel.

The Jay Bird filly Hawthorne won the Kentucky Stock Farm Stake Monday at Terre Haute in straight heats. Mary Leyburn and Allathena, Kentucky horses, divided second money.

C. J. Hamilton's great horse The Abbot, lowered the world's trotting record Tuesday by going a mile in 2:03 1/4, at Terre Haute, Ind. The former world's record was 2:03 3/4, made by Alis.

W. B. Griffith, bought last week in Montgomery county 900 export cattle at from five to five and a half cents. The largest purchase was $50 from J. M. Bigstaff, at $4.09 to $5.25.

Jack Spratley, a New York horse fancier, has bought at Lexington six extra fine mules to drive to his coach instead of using French or English coaches. They were shipped by express.

The Lexington trots, running from Oct. 2 to 12, will be the best ever seen in America. No one will ever see a better race than in the Ashland Stake, $3,000, in which Charley Herr 2:09, Boralma 2:09 1/4, Neeretta 2:09 3/4, and four or five other cracks will start, on Monday, Oct. 8.

It is said that Douglas Thomas has refused an offer of $6,000 for the three-year-old filly Iva Dee by Onward, dam Anning 2:11 3/4, by Warlock. She is one of the fastest three-year-old trotters in the country, having recently trotted a mile in 2:11. She is a candidate for the Kentucky Futurity.

STAGE STORIES.

Lavinia Shannon is a member of the New Orleans Stock Co. this season.

Theatre goers will meet "Quo Vadis" at every turn this season. F. C. Whitney has sent out two first-class companies, E. J. Carpenter has one company, and Aiden Benedict has four companies playing the piece. A number of stock companies are also producing the play.

Monday's Chicago News says of "A Midnight Bell," the next attraction at the opera house, coming October 8th: Charles H. Hoyt's story of New England life, "A Midnight Bell," began a week at the Great Northern theatre yesterday to an excellent attendance. Unlike Mr. Hoyt's other pieces, "A Midnight Bell" has a well defined plot of sufficient strength to carry the interest throughout the play, and is the only one which has some sentimental moments. The company is well up to the average. Alice Roseland as Dot and Harry Robinson as the Deacon being particularly good. The various specialties are well rendered.

The Metropolitan English Grand Opera Company, under the direction of Mr. Maurice Grau and Mr. Henry W. Savage, will make its first appearance in Cincinnati at Springer hall, on March 4th. The engagement is for six evenings performances, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. The organization will be heard in a repertoire of melodic masterpieces sung in English and presented with the same scenic and sartorial equipments as employed in the productions at the Metropolitan Opera House.

THEY WILL ARBITRATE

The Requests of the Sheriff of Luzerne County for Troops Was Not Granted—They Will Be Held in Readiness, However.

Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 26.—It was learned Tuesday night that Sheriff Harvey, of this (Luzerne) county, had telegraphed to Gov. Stone, asking that troops be sent to this county, on the ground that he (the sheriff) can not guarantee the safety of persons or property during the night marches of the strikers. The governor, it is understood, is considering the matter.

It was also learned that the sheriff's request was backed up by several telegrams from private citizens of Hazleton who, it is said, are mine operators.

The most important development here aside from the request for soldiers was the answer of G. B. Markle & Co. to the demands presented by the firm's employees ten days ago.

Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 27.—The request made Tuesday by Sheriff Harvey for troops, although not refused, was not granted by Gov. Stone. The sheriff and state officials at Harrisburg however, have an understanding between them, and if the necessity arises soldiers will be thrown into this region in short order. If this be done the first to arrive would probably be one of the commands now stationed at Shenandoah. The sheriff had a long talk with Adj. Gen. Stewart over the telephone and they agreed that in view of the calmness now prevailing through the Lehigh valley it would be inadvisable to send an armed force here at this time.

The crisis at the mine of G. B. Markle & Co., mines have been reached. There were many expressions among the men Wednesday of dissatisfaction against some of the firm's answers to their demands. The principal grievance of the men is the wage scale. They ask for only about half of what the United Mine Workers are demanding. Operations at the Markle collieries were suspended Wednesday so that the employees could hold meetings to discuss the firm's answer.

The meeting was held in the forenoon and Wednesday afternoon the committee composed of the employees of the several Markle mines, with the exception of Ebervale (which is completely tied up) made known to the firm the decision of the employees. They accept the firm's proposition in regard to hoisting of men from the slope, acquiesce in the refusal to pay the engineers by the hour and want to arbitrate all the other grievances excepting those relating to semi-monthly pay and the location of powder houses which have been adjusted by the answer of Markle & Co. The men also decided to remain at work pending the arbitration negotiations and agreed to ask the firm to "deduct from the pay of each family that returns to work their quota for the payment of the arbitrator selected by the men."

With regard to the general strike situation in the Lehigh valley, it cannot be said that many gains were made on either side Wednesday. Some who quit work Tuesday at the Cox, Tonlielken, Derringer and Cowen mines, returned Wednesday. The Lehigh Valley Coal Co., reports more men working Wednesday than at any time since the strike began.

Shenandoah, Pa., Sept. 27.—The closing Wednesday night of the Cambridge colliery, operated by the Cambridge Coal Co., completed the tie-up in the vicinity of this borough. This is a small operation, employing about 140 men, and was the only colliery working Wednesday between Hazleton and Ashland. D. R. James, a member of the firm, informed Provost Marshal Miller Wednesday that strikers had intimidated the men, and that the company decided to suspend operations to insure the safety of the employees. Mr. James told Maj. Miller that strikers had entered the homes of Cambridge employees at night and threatened them with bodily harm if they continued to work.

At Ashland the East colliery resumed Wednesday with almost its entire force. The Potts colliery at Locustdale and Locust Spring colliery at Locust Gap are also in operation. There is no change in the situation at Mahanoy City; all the collieries there remain idle. The men are quiet, but express determination to remain out. Gen. Gobin remained at his headquarters all day and was in communication with Gov. Stone Wednesday.

Wednesday night the general said there were no indications of an outbreak around Hazleton, although he was fully prepared in the event of a call for troops. The Girardville and Gibertown washeries were closed on Wednesday, the strikers persuading the employees to quit.

Barry Got the Decision.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 25.—At the Badger A. C. Monday night Emil Sanchez, the "Cuban Wonder," and Dave Barry, of Chicago, fought six exciting rounds, the decision going to Barry, who knocked his man down twice during the performance.

London, Sept. 25.—Dr. Nansen and the duke of Abruzzi, according to a dispatch to the Daily Express from Christiania, have agreed to undertake a joint expedition into north polar regions.

GEN. JOHN M. PALMER DEAD.

His Illness Was of But a Few Hours' Duration—He Was Distinguished in War and in State.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 26.—Gen. John M. Palmer, ex-governor of Illinois, and United States senator, died at his home here at 7 a. m. Tuesday.

The general was apparently in his usual health and spirits Monday, and during the day went down town and mingled with his old associates. In the evening, in company with his wife and other members of his family, he was down town again, but after returning home he began to complain of an intense, shooting pain in the chest, around the heart. The family physician was called, and Gen. Palmer obtained some relief, but the pain continued the greater part of the night, and the doctor was called in several times. At 3:30 Tuesday morning he made his last visit, and about 4 o'clock left, the general then being free from pain. "I feel all right now," he said, "but am very weak."

SENATOR JOHN M. PALMER.

Soon after the general went to sleep. About 7 o'clock Mrs. Palmer thought it best to call the doctor again, and slipped out across the street without waking her husband. She was gone only a few moments, but on her return found that he was dead.

Canton, O., Sept. 26.—President McKinley Tuesday night sent a message of sympathy on the death of Gen. Palmer to Senator S. M. Cullom, at Springfield, Ill., asking Mr. Cullom to convey to the members of the family his sincere sympathy.

THE GALVESTON HORROR.

More Than 6,000 Lives Were Lost, and the Property Loss Will Easily Amount to $30,000,000.

Galveston, Tex., Sept. 26.—A general appeal has been issued by the officials of this city. In part it says:

Seventeen days after the storm at Galveston it is still impossible to accurately estimate the loss of life and property. But it is known that the dead in the city will number at least 6,000, or approximately one-sixth of the census population. The island and adjacent mainland will add perhaps 2,000 to this number. The actual property damage is incalculable in precise terms but we believe the individual losses and the losses in public property, such as paving, waterworks, schools, hospitals, churches, etc., will easily amount to $30,000,000. This estimate takes no account of the direct and indirect injury to business.

Along the beach front upwards of 2,600 houses, by actual count, were totally destroyed. Of these not a timber remains upon the original site, and the wreckage constitutes the embankment of debris extending along the entire beach from three or four blocks inward for about three miles, the removal of which will cost seven hundred and fifty thousand to one million dollars. From this debris there are still daily uncovered by the workmen now systematically employed from 30 to 50 bodies which are burned or buried upon the spot.

The appeal thanks the American people for their generous aid in their hour of need, and asks for further contributions.

Fired the Children's Home.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 26.—Margaret May Kenney, an orphan, 13 years old, Tuesday night confessed to setting fire to the children's home at Wilkinsburg Tuesday. Last Sunday, because of trouble with the cook, she placed ammonia and carbon oil in the coffee, resulting in the severe illness of nearly all the inmates. She was locked in a room for this, and upon being released Monday night she carefully planned the destruction of the asylum. She is now in jail, charged with arson.

Isthmian Canal Commission.

Washington, Sept. 26.—The Isthmian canal commission stated Tuesday that it would be able to submit a report to congress sufficiently comprehensive to serve as a basis for the action of that body at the approaching session if it should be desirable to act. The field parties have all reported and only a few of the hydrographic parties and several boring parties remain on the Isthmus clearing up the work.

Secretary Root Better.

New York, Sept. 26.—Advices received Tuesday night from Southampton, L. I., are to the effect that Secretary of War Root is able to be out of doors, and his condition is not at all alarming.

Steamer Hawk at Montreal.

Montreal, Sept. 26.—The United States steamer Hawk, Capt. W. B. Wirt, arrived here Tuesday evening on her way to Cleveland, O., where she will be used as a training ship. The Hawk is manned by the naval reserve of Ohio.

HOWARD FOUND GUILTY

The Verdict Was Reached After an All-Night Session.

The Jury Condemns Him to Death for Being Implicated in the Murder of Senator Wm. Goebel.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 27.—The jury in the case of Jim Howard, the mountaineer, charged with being implicated in the murder of Senator Goebel, returned a verdict of guilty and fixed the penalty at death. The jury was disagreed only as to the punishment—ten favoring the death penalty on the very first ballot. The two who favored life imprisonment changed to the death penalty on the first ballot Wednesday morning. The instruction given to the jury, under which the verdict was found, was brief to the point, and was as follows:

"To be found guilty if jury believes Howard fired the shot, or if he was present when Yontsey, Berry Howard or others fired the shot."

Under it the jury believed that Howard fired the shot that killed Senator Goebel, or was present when the shot was fired, and consequently knows who the assassin was.

The jury retired to its room at 9:10 a. m., and returned with its verdict at 9:45. The court-room was crowded with spectators, and the vast crowd was white with suppressed excitement, as Foreman Crutcher of the jury passed the written verdict up to the clerk. Deputy Clerk Elliott read the verdict, which found the defendant guilty and fixed his punishment at death. Howard occupied a seat by his attorney. He did not display the least agitation and was apparently no more concerned than other persons in the court-room.

The verdict was a surprise, as the general public were led to believe that the jury was divided on the question of the guilt or innocence of the defendant, but it turned out that the difficulty in reaching a verdict was over the degree of punishment, some of the jurors favoring life imprisonment, while others stood out for the death penalty and finally won their associates over. After the verdict had been rendered, Howard was remanded to jail, where he was followed by his bosom friend, John G. White, who seemed almost paralyzed by the verdict. Howard's cheeks also blanched as he stood up to accompany the jailer back to his cell. The jury which tried the case was divided politically, eleven democrats and one republican. Their names were as follows: Washington Crutcher, Jerry Tracy, Frank Bacon, A. B. Bacon, Marine Webster, R. H. Hawkins, J. S. Wilson, William Baker, A. M. Duvall, Robt. Magruder, Samuel Cogswell and Samuel Lewis.

Frankfort, Sept. 27.—The verdict of the jury was based largely upon the destruction of Howard's alibi, upon which he depended solely. One of the jurors admitted that the failure of Howard to bring any of the occupants of the executive building on January 30 to testify that he was not there was considered by the jury as an indication that he was there. The testimony of Gaines as to seeing Howard run out of the grounds and also of Stubbfield, who swore that Howard confessed the killing a few days after the murder, were the other principal points upon which the jury relied.

CONVICT CAMP MANAGERS.

Are Charged With Kidnaping Innocent Negroes, Without Form of Trial Put Them to Work.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 27.—Charges have been filed with the prison commission of Georgia by Solicitor J. W. Edmondson, of Brooks county, against the McLee convict camp managers in Lowndes county, this state, in the form of affidavits from prominent citizens to the effect that the McLee brothers have kidnaped innocent men and women and made them work under armed guards for an indefinite period. It is charged that one practice of the McLee camp has been to employ "trappers" to arrest innocent Negroes passing through the county and without the form of trial to imprison them and put them to work.

Philadelphia, Sept. 27.—The Ventura, built here for the Oceanic Steamship Co., was launched Wednesday. Miss Elsie Crossin, niece of John D. Spreckles, president of the company, gave the vessel its name. The vessel will ply between San Francisco and Australia ports.

How Prince Albert Lost His Life.

Dresden, Sept. 27.—The adjutant of the late Prince Albert of Saxony now confirms the statement that the fatal runaway on September 17, in which the prince lost his life, was caused by the prince of Braganza driving rapidly past Prince Albert's carriage.

Torpedo Boat Destroyer Launched.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 27.—The torpedo boat destroyer Decatur, one of the largest vessels of its class in the navy, was launched Wednesday afternoon at the William R. Trigg Co.'s ship yards here in the presence of several thousand persons.

Secretary Morrill in Berlin.

Berlin, Sept. 27.—Samuel Morrill, third secretary of the United States embassy, succeeding H. Percival Dodge, recently appointed second secretary, has arrived in Berlin and entered upon his duties.

FIGHTING NEAR MANILA.

A Vigorous Insurgent Attack Was Made Upon the United States Outposts—Filipinos Dispersed.

Manila, Sept. 27.—On Monday night vigorous insurgent attacks were made upon the United States outposts in the district near Zapote bridge, Las Pinas, Paranaque, Bacor, and Imus, 12 miles south of Manila, the scene of the fighting last October. It is estimated that the rebels numbered 400 and they were armed with rifles. The inhabitants took refuge in the churches. The Americans have since energetically dispersed the enemy, killing and wounding 50.

A party of scouts belonging to the 25th United States infantry, landed on the island of Samar, the inhabitants and insurgents fleeing to the mountains. They met with but slight resistance and burned a town.

Tuesday night there was outpost firing at Pacte, Pagsanjan and Santa Cruz, in Laguna province.

It is reported that an American scouting party discovered a body of insurgents in the province of Nueva Ecija, two skirmishes ensuing, in which 12 of the natives were killed. Similar brushes have taken place near Indang and Silang in Cavite province, and near Iba and Subig, in Zamboanga province, the Americans having two killed and three wounded.

Advices from the island of Leyte say that Gen. Mojica's bands have been scattered and demoralized by Maj. Henry T. Allen, of the 43rd infantry, who has vigorously pursued the insurgents in the mountains, capturing many and taking a quantity of money, rifles, ammunition and stores.

THE CENSUS.

In 155 of the Largest Cities of the United States Numerical Increase of Population Was 627,953.

Washington, Sept. 27.—Statistics have been compiled at the census bureau, based on the population of large cities which have been announced up to the present time, which demonstrate that the 155 largest cities in the United States numerically increased in population from 1880 to 1900 almost exactly as they did between 1880 and 1890. These 155 cities increased their population 4,706,107 from 1880 to 1890, and 4,627,953 from 1890 to 1900, or just 78,154 less during the latter than in the former period. Of course, when the aggregate percentages of increase of the population of these 155 cities during these two periods are compared, they show that the percentage of increase was considerably lower in the last ten years, because the increase is compared with a larger population in 1900 than it was in 1890.

The fact that numerically the increase of the population of these cities has come out just about the same during the last two censuses is more interesting from the fact that the rates of increase of the various cities have varied greatly.

GOV. ROOSEVELT ATTACKED.

How From a Banner Struck His Breast—Rough Riders Finally Got Him to the Special Train.

Cripple Creek, Col., Sept. 27.—At Victor, a few miles from Cripple Creek, among the mines, Wednesday afternoon, Gov. Roosevelt and party were attacked by a mob with stones and sticks.

Gov. Roosevelt was struck on the breast and narrowly escaped a crowd of angry men. The Rough Riders closed about the governor and finally got him to the special train. Several men were hurt. Senator Wolcott was hissed from the stage. Bad eggs and rotten potatoes were thrown.

It is said that the trouble was occasioned by a small body of toughs. The men engaged were few in number, but violent in their attack.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 27.—Before leaving for Nebraska City Wednesday evening Mr. Bryan, in a note to the press, requested that his political friends remove his pictures from the windows on October 2 as a matter of courtesy to the republican candidate for vice president, Col. Roosevelt, who visits this city on that day.

County Treasurer Robbed.

Merced, Cal., Sept. 27.—County Treasurer Bambauer was held up late Tuesday night while on his way home and forced at the point of a pistol to go to his office and open the vaults containing the county funds. After securing $1,500 or more and some papers, the thieves forced Bambauer into the vault and sprung the combination. The imprisoned man was discovered Wednesday morning almost unconscious.

Well-Known Newspaper Man Dead.

Denver, Col., Sept. 27.—Kemp G. Cooper, of this city, one of the best known newspaper men in the west, died Wednesday of Bright's disease. He was for 18 years one of the owners of the Denver Republican, and a few weeks ago retired from the presidency of the Republican Co.

For Galveston Sufferers.

ENGLAND'S ANSWER.

Salisbury Asks for Time to Consider Germany's Proposal.

The Berlin Papers Flatly Deny That Great Britain Is Arrayed With the United States Against the German Proposal.

Washington, Sept. 26.—The United States government Tuesday took the first steps toward the redemption of its pledge made to the Russian government August 28 last by cablegram instruction to Gen. Chaffee to reduce the American forces in China to the proportion of a legion guard. Nearly a month ago the Russian government was told through M. de Wolent, its charge here, that if the Russian forces and ministry were withdrawn from Peking "we shall give instructions to the commander of the American forces in China to withdraw our forces from Peking after due conference with the other commanders as to the time and manner of withdrawal."

That time has now come, and Tuesday's action marks the beginning of the disappearance of the American army from China, for, although some military force is to remain, it will not be of the character of an army, but, under the conditions laid down in the order to Gen. Chaffee, and especially under its official designation as a "legion guard," will be rather of the nature of a civil guard. This small force will not be included in any military operations which may be conducted by the allied armies, and so will not fail subject to the direction of Field Marshal Count von Waldersee, who is the commander-in-chief.

Berlin, Sept. 27.—Late Wednesday afternoon a press correspondent in Berlin showed the German foreign office a private dispatch from London asserting that Lord Salisbury had informed Count von Hatzfeldt-Wildenburg, the German ambassador to Great Britain, that the reply of the British government to the German note would agree with that of the United States.

The foreign office thereupon reiterated the statement that this assertion was positively false. Upon attention being called to the fact that the dispatch in question did not claim that the allied information had been received from Count von Hatzfeldt, a high foreign office official read the advices from the German ambassador, and then said:

"Lord Salisbury has asked for a few days in which to consider the matter, desiring to procure certain information before giving a final reply. No answer has yet been given, at least no formal answer. There has been some oral discussion between Lord Salisbury and Count von Hatzfeldt, but it is not true that Great Britain has finally replied in the same tenor as the United States."

This repeated emphasizing publicly of the non-receipt of a formal answer has deepened the impression that the London advices concerning the matter are correct, the opinion being that the German foreign office still clings to the hope of winning England over.

The evening papers, taking this cue from the foreign office, flatly deny that Great Britain is arrayed with the United States against the German proposals to punish the leaders of the Peking outrages.

For the most part the influential journals follow the lead of the Cologne Gazette's inspired article, blaming the United States for China's renewed exhibition of hostile intentions. The Berliner Post, referring to Prince Tuan's latest edict, says: "It would be a sad spectacle to see Mr. Conger negotiating for peace in Peking with Li Hung Chang, while the Boxers in the immediate vicinity were fighting with the troops of the other powers."

Washington, Sept. 27.—One belated dispatch from Gen. Chaffee relative to the conditions in Peking on the 21st inst. was made public Wednesday. It is apparent that our government is again in a waiting attitude, after having made an important move toward the reduction of the American troops in China announced Tuesday. Gen. Chaffee had not received the department's instructions when he sent his message, made public Wednesday, but without doubt has it now in hand. His offer to escort Li Hung Chang was in conformity with the expressed purpose of the state department to facilitate in every proper manner the journey of the Chinese viceroy to Peking. Still, it is now regarded as just as well that the offer was declined and the responsibility for Li's safety left with the Russians.

Hong-Kong, Sept. 25.—Advices from Canton say that a boat load of native Christian women at Kun Chuk (?), on West river, was fired upon, and that the women were then taken ashore and butchered in cold blood.

Tennessee Miners Strike.

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 25.—Four hundred miners of the Coal Creek Co.'s mines at Coal Creek, Tenn., struck Monday after holding a mass meeting and voting against the contract for the year offered by the managers.

Torpedo Boat Launched.

New York, Sept. 25.—The torpedo boat O'Brien was successfully launched at the Nixon shipyard, Elizabethport N. J., Monday. The launching was witnessed by a large party of government officials.

PERUNA

Many a woman, sick and weary of life, dragged down by weakening drains, painful irregularities, depression, and the hundred and one ailments which affect women only, has found in Peruna a bright star of hope, which has changed her misery to joy, her suffering to health.

No woman need suffer from the derangements peculiar to her sex, if she will give Peruna a fair trial.

The majority of weaknesses which make woman's life a burden, spring from a simple cause. The mucous membrane which lines the pelvic organs becomes weakened and inflamed owing to strain, cold, overwork, etc. This causes catarrhal congestion, inflammation, painful irregularities, depression of spirits, irritability, weakness and suffering. It shows in the haggard lines of the face, the dull eyes, the flow of complexion and angular form.

For the prompt cure of such ailments try Peruna. It drives away "the blues," clears the complexion, brightens the eyes, changes thinness to plumpness, and cures pains, aches and drains, because it immediately strikes at the root of such troubles and removes the cause.

WHAT THE CENSUS TELLS.

What does the census say?
Study the figures well:
Hundreds of thousands of hurrying men,
Each with a story to tell;
Each with a heart and each with a soul,
Each with his joys and cares,
Each believing that he, somehow,
Should weigh in the world's affairs.

What does the census show?
Hundreds of thousands of men
Warily quitting their tasks to-night
To toil to-morrow again;
Hundreds of thousands of people, each
Faithfully hoping away
For a glimpse of the chance for the lucky strife
That each is to make, some day.

What does the census tell?
Does it tell of the eyes that ache?
Does it tell of the wreath on the little maund
Does it tell of the hearts that break?
Does it tell us a story of brotherhood,
Of help for the halt and blind?
Does it tell of the proud who ride in front
And the weary who trudge behind?

What does the census show?
Hundreds of thousands of hands,
Kroeted and rough and white and soft,
Filling the world's demands;
Hundreds of thousands of sons of God
Tolling in hope, in doubt,
Each with his woes or each with his joys
That the world cares nothing about!

What does the census say?
What do the figures mean?
Hundreds of thousands o'er whom the stars
Will some day be growing green!
Hundreds of thousands of bubbles cast
About on a troubled sea—
About in myriads hurrying past
With never a thought of me!

A PRECIOUS TRUST

THE firm of Twist & Taffeta was progressive—consequently considerate. So, it being July, Will Merrill got off at one o'clock on Saturdays. So did Iona Wray, who was in the mail order department, and who frequently came to him, in his position as manager of the cloth department, to match samples or order goods. On one of these occasions he discovered that Iona lived in the same suburb as he did. He found out, too, that they generally went out of the city at the same hour, on the same train. On learning which his spirits rose like a toy balloon. To be sure, Iona was a pretty girl. She possessed not only beauty, but distinction. She held her slender young body so erectly, she spoke so frankly, but also with such dignified reserve, and she was so earnest and so conscientious in doing the work intrusted to her that Will Merrill forgot while in her presence to give the firm his best duty and attention.

But, then, Merrill was extremely susceptible. If he had not been so susceptible it is quite unlikely that he would have been confided with a precious trust. And if he had not been selected for the honor conferred upon him he and Iona might never have proceeded beyond the boundaries where the courtesies of casual acquaintance cease. Indeed, she did not feel sufficiently familiar with him to mention the fact of her intention to stay an hour later in town than usual on one particular afternoon, although she had come down to Merrill that morning for six yards of lavender broadcloth to be sent to a lady living in Arizona.

"Hot day," remarked Merrill. "It will be fine to get away early."
"Delightful!" assented Iona.

But she did not enter the Northwestern depot at her ordinary hour, although Will paced up and down just without the railing, and watched the great gates until his train had come and gone. Surely she would be here before the next train was due to leave. The thought of sitting beside her as the train rushed out of the smoky city into the beautiful green suburbs was delightful. He might even get up courage to ask to call! And if permitted to do so, how kind he would be to Bobby!—if only Bobby would keep still about their little altercation. Bobby had stretched a string across the sidewalk. Merrill, running for the train, had fallen over it and skinned his shins. Observing the culprit, he had promptly grabbed him and given him chastisement brief but effective. Confound it! How was he to know that the little red-headed wretch was the brother of this charming girl? He would fall over strings all the way from Melrose to State streets, if only—

"I beg your pardon, madam!"
"What was in his hand and he was bowing profoundly to a lady with whom he had almost collided when he had turned so abruptly in his impetuous walk."

"Do not mention it!" cried the lady, who was young and pale and of almost tragic appearance. She was handsome, too, but evidently grief was responsible for the wild expression of her large black eyes and the piteous trembling of her lips. She wore deep mourning. She was apparently a foreigner. "But you will help me, sir? I am in desperation. Two hours from now I take a train to the west. I came down here to make arrangements for leaving. At my hotel I forgot some important papers. I must return at once and secure them. In the meantime may I beg of you to undertake the care of my darling Snowflower? It is a precious trust and one which I would not confide to every stranger. Is this asking too much, sir?"

Merrill, the susceptible, Merrill the gallant, bowed still more courteously. "I am honored," he assured her, "highly honored! Consider me at your service."

He felt jubilant. This was an opportunity. Now, when Iona Wray arrived, she would see with what gentleness, with what tenderness he cared for this child of a stranger! She would appreciate all the lovely depths of his sympathy! She would be incredulous of the statements of that red-headed Bobby! She might even think Bobby deserved corporal reproof. And, when she passed through the gates, alone, what a lingering glance would she not send back to him where he sat caring for the child of a lonely young widow! He would smile sadly in answer, and she would realize that it was only his sense of chivalry which kept him from her side. And all the way out she—

So deep was he in the delicious dream he did not perceive the return of the black-eyed stranger until she was close beside him.

"You are so kind! I shall now feel perfectly safe about my little darling. I shall soon be back!"

Then she disappeared, and Merrill found himself staring down upon the big, covered basket she had thrust in his hand. Hallo! What kind of a game was this? Her darling Snowflower! Her precious trust! Was the child dead? Was he to be involved in an ugly mystery? His face blanched. A cold sweat broke out on his forehead. He could feel it trickling down his cheeks. He glared wildly around. He sank weakly down on the bench, never relaxing his grip of the heavy basket. Should he cut for it and run? Wouldn't that arouse suspicion? Or—merciful heavens! Here was Iona Wray now—coming directly towards him, and looking sweet as a rose in her thin summer gown and big leghorn hat. He was wildly anxious that she should not see him, but she did. She paused in some astonishment. "Are you ill?" she asked. "I have never seen you appear so—" she hesitated for a word—"so disturbed," she concluded.

He staggered to his feet, still holding hard the handle of the basket in his left hand and jerking off his hat with his right.

"No—no! I'm all right—at least—"

Here something in the basket moved. He glanced down in a panic. Iona's bewildered gaze followed him. Did that contain the mystery of his pallor, his excitement, his distracted air?

"It's—it's alive!" he said, in a blood-curdling whisper.

He hastily set the basket down and drew back.

"What's alive?" gasped Iona.

"Her darling Snowflower—the child!" he panted.

"The child!" repeated Iona, with a shriek. "A baby in that basket!"

Her cry attracted the attention of the people hurrying for the trains.

Many paused. A crowd gathered—augmented.

"Here—here!" cried a portly policeman hastening up. "What's all this about?"

"It's a child!" "It's a baby!" "It's tied in that basket!" "Here's a loop-hole for air!" "Who does it belong to?"

"The man was abducting it!"

The cries increased in number. Exclamations of horror resounded.

A couple of railway officials passed through the throng. And meantime the basket rocked away on the bench in an uncanny fashion that sent shivers down the back of the least imaginative.

"I don't know anything about it!" protested Merrill in an agonized wail.

"A lady gave it to me to hold until her return. I—"

Lowering looks met his. A threatening growl arose.

"That's all right, sir!" grunted out a man apparently panopied with authority. "We'll attend to you. Officer, keep your eye on this fellow! I am going to open this basket."

He whipped out a knife—bent down. The curious crowd pressed closer. Not one of that breathless mob moved as the knife snipped—snipped along the taut lines. Suddenly the lid was jerked upward. There was a cry from the basket—not the cry of a child. It was a yelp. A woolly white poodle poked out his head and looked inquisitively around.

The howl that went up from the observers caused the hurrying suburbanites on the iron staircase to stand aghast. The big policeman burst into a howl. He took his hand from Merrill's arm. Iona laughed through her frightened tears. And, just when the hubbub was at its height, a frantic woman burst through the throng. She ploved her way to the bench, to the basket, her black eyes flashing fire.

"You are a fine gentleman to trust!" she screamed. She had turned on Merrill in a fury. "Letting those horrid railroad men see my Snowflower! Now, they will not allow me to take him in the passenger car! And I shall not have my beautiful little love shut up in the baggage car! I gave him the tiniest whiff of choleraform to keep him quiet until we should have started. I went away to get a trifle more. He would have slept the whole way! But you—you impostor! You have betrayed me! You have abused my confidence!" She stormed away at a wonderful rate. "O, my precious pet!" she wailed at last, catching the drowsy canine to her bosom. "It's astonishing that he didn't try to steal you!"

"I—I didn't know it was a dog!" protested Merrill, weakly. She flung fiercely around. "What did you think it was?" she demanded.

Whereat the crowd roared again.

"Oak Park train—all a-b-oard!" bawled the starter.

Merrill and Miss Wray sat together all the way out. They laughed immoderately. He was assured he might call. He did—in fact, he is still calling. To be explicit, there is a rumor that—but this may be gossip. Anyhow, the girls in the mail order department smile when Iona's work takes her to the cloth goods aisle. And Will's fellow-workers are gazing him for taking down Navajo blue when she asked for sunburnt rose. At all events, these young people seem to be happy together on their free Saturday afternoons. Best of all, Bobby, by some mysterious process, has been conciliated. As a chapman, self-satisfied, ubiquitous and decidedly superfluous, he merits commendation, and gets nickels, dimes, and sometimes even—quarters.—Chicago Tribune.

Costly Peaches in Paris.

An American's Experience Taught Him That Fruit Is Costly Sometimes.

He is not so very young, neither is he without experience in the ways of the world. He has been more or less of a rounder and the patches of gray above his temples indicate that he is no longer a boy. The fact that he is a successful buyer for one of the largest retail houses in the city ought to be evidence that he is not without both shrewdness and experience.

After some ten or a dozen trips abroad in the interest of his business, his friends say that he ought to have known better. But that only adds zest to the telling of the story and they have told it often enough to necessitate his paying for a good many "rounds" since his return from Paris a few days ago. For he admits, a little sorrowfully, perhaps, that it's "on him."

It happened one hot night less than a month ago. He had knocked off work early in the afternoon, spent a couple of hours at the exposition, and later dropped into an empty chair at one of the many sidewalk cafes in the gay French city.

It may have been by accident, or it may have been by design, that his chair was in close proximity to two occupied by a couple of demure-looking girls of English aspect. It is certain, at least, that they spoke English, whatever their nationality. He says that he was lonely; the demure ones seemed similarly depressed. Shy glances were followed by sympathetic sighs, and, as a matter of course, conversation ensued. It was the most harmless thing in the world. So, too, was his invitation to them to partake of some refreshment.

"We're just waiting for papa," lisped one of the girls, and the other said that they couldn't think of accepting such courtesy from a stranger.

He insisted; they resisted, then consented.

"I'm not the least little bit hungry," said demure Miss One. "Neither am I," echoed bashful Miss Two.

A waiter was at their elbows.

"What will you have?" asked the gallant New York man, and when one of them said she thought a peach would be about all she could eat, the other agreed that it would be "so nice."

The man congratulated himself on the modesty of their demands. He had yet to learn a thing or two about the cost of the fresh fruit in Paris. He insisted that they must have sandwiches, too, and a moment later the waiter served the order. Six luscious peaches reposed on the plate. Each of the girls took one. Their appetites were truly small, but while they munched sandwiches they playfully toyed with the remaining four peaches. In fact, they pierced them with their forks and gouged them with their knives. The fruit was a complete wreck.

Then one of the maidens remembered papa, and suggested that they go look for him. With pretty bows and thanks galore they left, just as the waiter presented the bill. When the New York man cast his eye over the paper he read something like this:

Three sandwiches at 2 francs each..... 6
Six peaches at 20 francs each..... 120

He paid the bill, $25.20, and has been wondering ever since if fruit farming for the Paris market will not pay better than his business. Since his return he has learned that demure girls in Paris sometimes draw commissions for gouging peaches, a bit overripe, to please Americans who are more than a bit green.—N. Y. Times.

Health in Mountain Air.

Many Bodily Ailments Are Alleviated by the Breathing of Pure Oxygen.

It is well known that the chemical composition of the atmosphere differs but little, if at all, wherever the sample be taken; whether it be on the high Alps or on the surface of the sea, the relation of oxygen to nitrogen and other constituents is the same. The favorable effects, therefore, of a change of air are not to be explained by any difference in the proportion of its gaseous constituents. One important difference, however, is the bacteriological one. The air of high altitudes contains no microbes, and is, in fact, sterile, while near the ground and some 100 feet above it microbes are abundant. In the air of towns and crowded places not only does the microbe impurity increase, but other impurities, such as the products of combustion of coal, acetic acid, says the London Lancet.

Several investigators have found traces of hydrogen and certain hydrocarbons in the air, and especially in the air of pine, oak and birch forests. It is to these bodies, doubtless consisting of traces of essential oils, to which the curative effects of certain health resorts are ascribed. Thus the locality of a fir forest is said to give relief in diseases of the respiratory tract. But all the same these traces of essential oils and aromatic products must be counted, strictly speaking as impurities, since they are not apparently necessary constituents of the air. As recent analyses have shown, these bodies tend to disappear in the air as a higher altitude is reached, until they disappear altogether. It would seem, therefore, that microbes, hydrocarbons and entities other than oxygen and nitrogen, and perhaps we should add argon, are only incidental to the neighborhood of human industry, animal life, damp and vegetation.

Col. Young's Speech.

COL. BENNETT H. YOUNG, of Louisville, addressed a very large crowd of Democrats Tuesday night at the court house, answering the speech made by Mr. Yerkes in the afternoon. Col. Young took up every argument made by Mr. Yerkes and answered it to the satisfaction of the audience, his speech being received with frequent outburst of applause. The crowd tested the utmost capacity of the circuit court room, and quite a number of ladies complimented Col. Young by their presence. Col. Young's speech will do much good for the party.

Mr. Yerkes' Reception.

HON. JOHN W. YERKES, Republican candidate for Governor, addressed a large crowd at the court house Tuesday afternoon, and his speech was received with much applause. Mr. Yerkes spoke an hour and a half, devoting himself mostly to State issues. The stand was tastefully decorated with palms and flags. Mr. Yerkes was introduced by Mr. J. Q. Ward.

Mr. Yerkes held a reception from 9:30 to 12:30 at the Windsor. He was the guest of his brother, Prof. W. L. Yerkes, during his stay in Paris.

Speaking On Court Day.

Attorney General R. J. Breckinridge, Assistant Adjutant General David R. Murray and South Trimble will address the voters at the court house on Monday (court day) afternoon in the interest of Democracy. It is hoped that they will be greeted by a large crowd.

Bet a Fortune On Bryan.

Richard Croker's wagers on the election of Bryan now aggregate $100,000. Should the Democratic candidate win the leader of Tammany Hall will realize at least $250,000 upon his risk. While the great majority of his wagers have been placed by him at the rate of 1 to 2½, he succeeded in getting some bets early in the campaign at 1 to 3.

Mr. Croker has not only staked a fortune upon the success of Bryan, but he has informed all his intimate friends in Tammany that Bryan is certain to win, and has advised them to follow his own example.

Though the amount of Mr. Croker's wagers is an open secret, he himself will not admit for publication that he has bet a dollar on the result of the election. "But you think that 1 to 2½ on Bryan is a good bet, do you not?" was said to Mr. Croker. "Yes, I do," said Mr. Croker positively. "I think even money would be a good bet. Bryan is going to win."

An Off Color Marriage.

JOHN H. MORRISON, a white man, aged forty-six, and Rosa Finch, a colored woman, aged nineteen, both residents of this city, were married Monday in Cincinnati. Morrison is a machinist and gets a salary of about one thousand dollars per year.

A large number of Paris people have expressed great indignation over his act, and not a few have favored giving him some kind of a reception.

The law of Kentucky prohibits their marriage but if the marriage is valid where it is performed it is valid if the parties return to Kentucky.

The sum of $300.00 was yesterday sent from this city to the storm sufferers at Galveston. The City Council appropriated one hundred dollars of this sum and the balance was raised by private subscriptions. The sum was raised under the auspices of the Paris Literary Club.

Ideas From The French.

THE French milliners have been busy all Summer fashioning fetching pattern hats to please the American visitors to the Paris Exposition. Their best work has reached New York and Mrs. Corne Watson selected the choicest patterns during her trip East recently for her fastidious patrons in Bourbon and neighboring counties. Beside these she also chose the most beautiful patterns made by the New York artists. Mrs. Watson, as usual, has a clever assistant, Miss Ray Ceiner, and they are very busy even now getting ready for the usual Fall display, which occurs on October 5th and 6th. Every lady who has an eye for the beautiful should take advantage of Mrs. Watson's broad invitation to attend these displays.

A New Election Bill.

Wednesday night the House Committee on Elections agreed upon a bill which will be acceptable to all of the members, it is believed. The bill gives the election boards only ministerial powers, providing that all contests shall originate in the courts. The State Board is to consist of one Democrat and one Republican, appointed by the Governor on recommendation of the State Committee of the two parties, with the Clerk of the Court of Appeals as umpire. Each county board shall consist of three members, all appointed by the State Board, but two of whom must be recommended respectively by the Democratic and Republican County Executive Committee.

Democrats, register Tuesday, Oct. 2, or you will not get to vote.

Fall Tints Anticipated.

The artist milliners of the East have anticipated the rich Autumnal tints of the forest and flowers and have reproduced them in exquisite pattern hats and bonnets for the ladies of Bourbon and surrounding counties. Mrs. M. Parker has received a large assortment of these goods and believes that she will have something on exhibition at her Fall display on Friday and Saturday, October 5th and 6th, to please the most exacting patron. Mrs. Parker is being assisted by a most competent artist, Miss Lida Johnson, in preparing for her annual Fall display. These exhibitions are important events, and the dates—Oct. 5th and 6th—should not be forgotten. The usual general invitation to the ladies is extended.

If you cannot read this small print at a distance of 14 inches your eyesight is failing and should have immediate attention:

Imperial spectacles and eyeglasses have perfect lenses, always perfectly centered and made of purest material, set in frames of the highest elasticity and consequently of greatest durability, united with the utmost lightness and elegance. When both frames and lenses are scientifically fitted by Dr. C. H. Bowen's system they always give satisfaction for they are perfect. Never buy cheap spectacles, nor of men who do not know how to fit them. You will get poorly adjusted spectacles, or poor, imperfect lenses, and are better off without any glasses than with either of these defects. Buy Imperial spectacles of a reliable, skillful optician, and they will last longer without a change and be cheapest in the end.

We have engaged the services of Dr. C. H. Bowen who will visit our store on the second and last Thursdays of each month and invite all to call and have their eyes examined, for which there is no charge. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Next visit—Thursday, Oct. 11, 1900. Hello, 170.

LOVE'S VICTORY.

Unarmed, Love wins her bloodless battles here
Against her stubborn foes;
She conquers Hate, and routs the coward
Fear,
And swiftly overthrows
Proud Self and blind Ambition. She de-thrones
King Greed, whose worldly sway
Has ruled men's minds in all the earthly zones
From the remotest day!
She tolled in the silences to gain
The victory o'er Wrong;
Grim Avarice resists her power in vain—
Her power, a heart-born song!
She worketh with her miracles to glean
Men's thought and to restore
That which they yearn to know of the Unseen.
To their souls' slight once more!
O Love, how mighty shall thy triumph be,
Which now hath but begun;
Look where thine adversaries turn and flee
Before Life's dawning sun!
As vapors vanish 'fore Aurora's beam,
When day disperses night,
So disappear before thy power supreme
The enemies of Right!

Unarmed, Love comes and scatters far and wide
The hosts of selfish sin;
Ah, with what grandeur doth her rising tide
O'er life's dark shoals flow in!

"Bless my soul!" said Folsom. "I supposed that was what she was for. What did these women mean by telling me I must have a companion—a guide, etc.?"

"They meant, you blessed daddy, that they wished to provide you with—one of their number, and me—with something I do not want. If Mrs. Fletcher is to be housekeeper, I have nothing to say, but—don't you think your big daughter old enough and wise enough to select her own companions? Daddy dear," she continued, after a little pause, and nestling close to him with a pathetic look in the big brown eyes, her lips twitching a bit. "I know how loving and thoughtful you have been in all this, and I wouldn't have you think me ungrateful, but—did you believe I was always going to be a little girl? What do you suppose I studied housekeeping for at school? Mrs. Fletcher is engaged, I presume, and I can't ask you to undo that now, but I wish you had written to me first. However, if you don't mind, there's somebody I'd rather you would invite to take the fourth seat to-day, and then you can have Pappoose beside you, if you wish."

"Why, of course, sweetheart, anyone you like."

"Lieut. Loomis, then, daddy—the officer we met on the train. Jessie likes him, and he's such a friend of her brother—the only one we have yet seen who seems to know him at all. Then you could ask him to dinner, too."

Folsom's face was a study. Doubt and perplexity both were twining in the little muscles about his lips.

"We met three officers, did we not, Elinor, and I had thought—somewhat of asking the major and his guest. He said he wished to call. He was here while we were driving yesterday. I met him later."

"Yes, I saw his card," was the hurried, indifferent answer. "But they are not like Mr. Loomis. Daddy, I did not at all like that Capt. Newhall, or—for that matter—"

"They both seemed prodigiously struck with you," said Folsom, in misguided confidence, yet pardonable pride. "They've done nothing but talk to me about you ever since."

"They did nothing but talk to me all the way over the mountains, except when they were out taking what I have reason to believe was an occasional drink, daddy mine. Jess had Mr. Loomis to herself. They have found your weak spot, daddy. They know you love to talk of your daughter. You have only known Maj. Burleigh a little while. Is it not so?"

"Only within the year, perhaps, though of course I've heard of him a great deal."

"And this Capt. Newhall, whose regiment is in Louisiana while he's out here on leave—I thought officers went east when they got leave."

"Newhall says he's out looking over some mining schemes. He has money to invest, I believe."

"He should invest some money in a traveling suit, daddy dear. That coat and his linen seemed woefully out of condition. Gentlemen are not careless about such matters."

"Oh, he explained that his trunks were delayed in Omaha or somewhere, and were coming along next train. I own I was prejudiced against him, too, but of course if he's a friend and guest of Burleigh's he must be all right. He's staying with him at the depot."

"And you've got to invite them to dinner?" asked Miss Folsom, after another pause, during which she had been thinking deeply.

"Not if you don't want it, pet. Of course they'll expect it. Army officers are hospitable, you know. Burleigh has asked me to dine with him a dozen times, though I've only been there once."

"Then you'll have to invite him, daddy," was the answer, with quick insistence. "Only, just wait for a day or two. Capt. Newhall was going right out to the mines, he said, and there may be others we'd be glad to have. Jessie's brother ought to be here any hour."

"Yes," said Folsom, dubiously. "I've been thinking about him—I've been wishing—"

But he hesitated and faltered and could not meet the deep brown eyes, so full of searching inquiry and keen intelligence.

"You've been thinking—what, daddy?" she asked, and now her slender hands were on his shoulders and she was turning him so that she could study his face. "You have been hearing something you do not wish us to know, daddy, dear. I heard Maj. Burleigh say something to Mr. Loomis about—about Lieut. Dean, and I know Mr. Loomis did not like it, and Jessie and I can't believe it. Father, where is he? Why doesn't he come? Why do these—these people at the fort hen and baw and hesitate when they speak about him? Jessie is getting so troubled."

"I'm getting troubled, daughter," answered Folsom, impulsively. "I never met a likelier young fellow or one that promised to make a better officer. He may be all right, too, only it isn't so much what they do say as what they don't say that troubles me. Burleigh here and old Stevens out at the fort and one or two others I've asked about him. Burleigh says he 'lost his nerve' when they met Red Cloud's big band. A boy might be excused for that so long as he didn't misbehave. It was big responsibility for a young lieutenant. But these people, as you speak of them out at the fort, really know very little about Dean. Burleigh says he's in a position that enables him to know so much more about the character and habits of the young officers."

"Surely he can say nothing against Mr. Dean!" exclaimed Pappoose, looking up with quick indignation in her brown eyes. "No one knows how good and generous he has been to Jessie and his mother."

They were standing at the moment in the corner of the library farthest from the doorway. The front windows opened to the north, giving a fine view of the rolling hills rising higher and higher and looking down upon the grass-grown slopes spread out at their feet, criss-crossed and traversed by hard-beaten roads and trails. Immediately in front of the house Folsom had seeded and wafered and coaxed into semblance of a lawn the best turf to be had in that section of Wyoming, and inclosed it in a spick and span white picket fence. The main road between the fort and the railway station passed directly in front of his gate. The side window of the cozy room looked out to the west over the valley of a rushing stream, once rich in trout, but now much infested by the mules from Burleigh's corral, which lay half a mile away to the southeast, out of sight of Folsom's house except from the upper windows. Eager to stock the library with standard works against his daughter's coming, the old trader had consulted a friend among the officers and had sent a lavish order to a house in Chicago. Books, therefore, were there in plenty on the handsome shelves, and they were not ill-chosen either, but it was Mrs. Fletcher who pointed out how stiff and angular everything looked, who introduced the easy lounge, the soft rugs, the heavy hanging portieres of costly Navajo blankets. It was her deft touch that draped the curtains at the windows and softened and beautified the lines the hand of man would have left crude and repellent. And that library had been her favorite haunt; but since the coming of the girls Mrs. Fletcher had seemed to retire to her own room aloft, and to spend no time below stairs that was not demanded by her household duties. Now as the father and daughter were talking earnestly together, they heard Mrs. Fletcher moving about overhead as though looking over the work of the housemaid. Jessie had gone to her own room to write a short letter to her mother. Maj. Burleigh was to come at 10:30 to drive them out to Pinnacle Butte, a sharp, rocky height far across the valley, from the summit of which a wonderful view was to be obtained. It lacked but five minutes of the time and suddenly Mrs. Fletcher's voice was heard on the floor above. It was a well-modulated voice, gentle and controlled, with a clear, vibrant ring in it that made the words distinctly audible to the hearers below.

"The major's carriage is coming up the street, Miss Dean. There are two officers."

"Two!" exclaimed Jess, starting to her feet, thinking only of her brother. "Oh! I wonder if—"

And then they heard her go pit-a-pat through the hall to the front of the house, heard Mrs. Fletcher more deliberately follow, heard presently the beat of horses' hoofs on the hard roadway, and the whir of coming wheels. "I'll go out to meet them, Elinor—I'll talk to you more about this some other time. You don't care to go on this ride this morning one bit, do you, dear?" he added, unasily.

"No, father; frankly, I don't—but he has been polite to you and attentive to us. There's no help for it."

And so Folsom went alone to the door to meet his visitors on the porch without, and did not hear, did not see Mrs. Fletcher, who came hastily down the stairs, her face singularly pale, a glitter of excitement in her eyes. On tiptoe she hastened along the broad hall, reaching the library door just as Folsom stepped out on the porch. On tiptoe she darted in, closed the door behind her, almost rushed to the north window, and there grasping the curtain she crouched, heedless of the possibility of observation, and for half a minute clung and crouched and stared. Then, as Folsom's genial, powerful voice was heard in welcoming accents, and heavy footsteps came along the broad board walk, the woman straightened suddenly and, noiseless as before, hurried back across the room and came face to face with the daughter of the house.

"Oh, Miss Folsom!" she faltered, her bosom heaving in violent agitation. "I did not know you were here. I—excuse me—" and hastened out of the room and up the winding stairs.

"Pappoose" never hesitated. Coolly, quickly, she stepped to the window. Maj. Burleigh had just reached the top step and was exchanging greeting with his host. The stylish team and glistening wagon were just spinning away.

"It'll be back in five minutes," she heard the quartermaster explain to her father. "Newhall has to meet some people coming in by stage from Green river. I thought I'd rather spend the time here."

And on the back seat, affably waving his hand in adieu, and jauntily lifting his rakish forage cap in salutation general to any of the young ladies who might be watching, sat the gentleman whose regiment was in Louisiana while he was up here on leave looking after mining investments.

CHAPTER X.

"Three mortal hours," said Miss Folsom to her fond little school friend and chum that afternoon, "have I had to sit or stroll with or listen to Maj. Burleigh. I never once was able to enjoy the view. What made him hurry us away from the northeast point, do you suppose?"

"Did you notice that, Nell? I did, too, and I was so interested in the view. Away up toward Laramie peak I could see something through the glasses that looked like a lot of little ants crawling along together. It was just after that—just after we looked through the glass, that he marched us round to the other side. The view toward Green river isn't half as pretty."

"And now he's telling some interminable story to father over their cigars. What shall we do if he hangs on? Father will have to ask him to drive with us to the fort, and there won't be room."

"Unless Mrs. Fletcher gives up her seat," said Jessie, demurely.

"Mrs. Fletcher isn't going. A very different person takes her seat to-day, Jess. Father left a note for Mr. Loomis at the hotel and he accepted. Now you see why I don't want Maj. Burleigh."

It was then long after three o'clock. At five they were to start, and Jessie could hardly curb her impatience. The mail from Ely, so said Folsom, would arrive that evening, and then surely there would be news of Marshall. They had slipped away to their rooms after the bountiful luncheon served on their return, in order, as Pappoose expressed it, that the gentlemen might have their cigars in peace. Mrs. Fletcher, after seeing that everything was prepared, had directed the servant to say to Mr. Folsom, on the return of the party, that she would prefer not to appear, and would be glad to keep her room, as she did not feel it at all necessary for the housekeeper to meet strangers. It was so much sweeter not to have any presiding genius other than Pappoose. Not that he was forgetful of Mrs. Fletcher's merits and services—which were great—but it was plain to see that his daughter would have been happier had no such office existed as that created for this deserving and destitute widow. At three Miss Folsom had gone and tapped at the lady's door—her room was in the third story, overlooking the street—and was very civilly assured that Mrs. Fletcher stood in need of nothing, but, being wearied, she would like a little sleep. No, she did not even care for a cup of tea. Yet Elinor felt confident that the voice that replied to her inquiries came neither from the bed nor the lounge, but from the direction of the front window.

At three the cigars were smoked out and the host and his guests were in the library. It was Folsom's custom, when a possible thing, to take a brief nap after the midday meal, and Elinor felt sure he would be glad of the opportunity now, if Burleigh would only go, but Burleigh wouldn't. In monotonous monologue his voice came floating up to the second floor, drowsy, unbroken in its soporific flow, and the girls themselves, after the morning's drive in the clear, braising air, felt as though forty winks would be a blessing. Could it be that Burleigh lingered on in hopes of their reappearance below? Might it not be that if relief came not speedily Papa Folsom would yield to the spell and fall asleep in his easy-chair? Was it not Miss Folsom's duty to descend and take the burden of entertainment off the elder shoulders? These thoughts oppressed the girl, and, starting up, she cried:

"It's simply wicked of me staying here and letting poor papa be bored to death. Do come down, Jess. dear, unless you're too dreadfully sleepy. He acts just as though he intended never to go."

And Jess promised reluctantly to come down in ten minutes, if he didn't leave; but she hated him, and had hated him ever since he spoke so of Marshall in the ear three days before.

The upper hall had been quite dark when Miss Folsom went up to inquire how Mrs. Fletcher was, just after luncheon. The door to her little room was tightly closed. The blinds in all the other rooms aloft were drawn against the glare of the sunshine in the cloudless atmosphere, yet now, as Pappoose stepped suddenly upon the landing, she was surprised to see that the upper floor was much lighter than when she went up half an hour earlier. The maid had not gone thither from the kitchen, and Mrs. Fletcher wished to doze. Who, then, could have opened both blind and door and let in that flood of light? Impulsively the active girl flew up the winding stairs to the third story, and some one suddenly withdrew from the balcony rail, and an instant later, as Miss Folsom reached the top, all became dark again. Mrs. Fletcher's door had unquestionably been open, and was now shut to. She must have been out there listening, and gravely the young girl asked herself what it meant—Mrs. Fletcher's agitation in the library that morning as she peered out at the major's wagon; her absence from luncheon on account, as she pleaded, of not desiring to appear when company was present; and now, despite her desire to sleep, her vigil at the third-floor landing, where she was surely listening to the sounds from below.

Pondering over the facts, Elinor Folsom slowly retraced her steps and went downstairs. She reached the library none too soon. Old John's eyes were closed and he was slowly toppling, overcome with sleep. The sound of her cheery voice aroused him, and he started, guilty and crestfallen.

Burleigh's heavy face brightened visibly at her coming. He cared no more for music than does a cat, but eagerly followed her across the broad hall into the parlor when she suggested showing him the beautiful piano papa had given her; and old John, blessing her, lured her to the sofa, buried his hot head in a pillow, and was asleep in ten seconds. Maj. Burleigh was alone with the lovely daughter of the veteran trader. He was a man of the world, she an unsophisticated girl just out of school—so said Burleigh, albeit a most charming one; and he, who had monopolized her time the entire morning, bore down once more upon his prize.

The Occasional Visitor.—I have noted that these clever spirit mediums who can make chairs and miscellaneous furniture dance a hornpipe always call in a very material drayman when they want to move the piano.

The Artist.—You recollect the Frenchman who asked an Irish medium to produce the spirit of Voltaire? Voltaire came forth, much to his admirer's delight. It was Voltaire complete in every detail. The Frenchman began an animated conversation in their native tongue. The shade did not respond. At last the Frenchman grew exasperated and turned to the medium.

"Not can ze great Voltaire converse?"

"Of course he can, yez heathen, if ye will stop that forin lingo and talk good English. Do yez take him for a frog-eater?"—"As Talked in the Sapnetum."

His Music.—The secret of success is to believe in the thing that one is doing. Because he innocently expected nothing, but compliments, an Italian organ-grinder easily got out of a difficulty. He had been playing before the house of a very irascible old gentleman, who furiously and with wild gesticulations ordered him to "clear off." The organ-grinder, however, continued to grind away, till finally the old gentleman had him arrested for disturbance. At the police court the magistrate asked why he did not leave when requested to do so. "Me no understand much Inglesse," was the reply. "Well," said the magistrate, "but you must have understood what he meant when he kept stamping his feet and waving his arms." "No, me not know," replied the Italian. "Me think he come to dance to my music." The organ-grinder was discharged.—N. Y. World.

Proof Positive.—Female Customer.—You say these spoons are solid silver, young man?

Clerk.—Yes, ma'am; every one of them.

Female Customer.—Who are they made by?

Clerk.—Sterling, ma'am. His name is on every spoon.—Judge.

Not Necessary.—Deacon Short—Robbins gave me a lead quarter when I asked him to change a dollar for me.

Friend.—Did you get after him about it?

"Oh, no; I didn't have any trouble in passing it."—Harlem Life.

Uncle Allen.—"The trouble about onions," philosophized Uncle Allen Sparks, "is that when you eat them you have to take so many people into your confidence about it."—Chicago Tribune.

His Virtue.—"Well, no one can ever say that I talk about my neighbors."

"No. You talk about yourself so much that you can't have time."—Chicago Times-Herald.

The Happy Result.

February 10th, 1900.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough. It is just simply wonderful the change your medicine has made in me. I feel like another person. My work is now a pleasure to me, while before using your medicine it was a burden. To-day I am a healthy and happy girl. I think if more women would use your PINKHAM Compound, they would be less suffering in the world. I cannot express the relief I have experienced by using Lydia E. Pretty Children

"We have three children. Before the birth of the last one my wife used four bottles of MOTHER'S FRIEND. If you had the pictures of our children, you could see at a glance that the last one is the healthiest, prettiest and finest-looking of them all. My wife thinks MOTHER'S FRIEND is the greatest and grandest remedy in the world for expectant mothers."—Written by a Kentucky Attorney-at-Law.

MOTHER'S FRIEND prevents nine-tenths of the suffering incident to childbirth. The coming mother's disposition and temper remain unruffled throughout the ordeal, because this relaxing, penetrating liniment relieves the usual distress. A good-natured mother is pretty sure to have a good-natured child. The patient is kept in a strong, healthy condition, which the child also inherits. MOTHER'S FRIEND takes a wife through the crisis quickly and almost painlessly. It assists in her rapid recovery, and wards off the dangers that so often follow delivery.

Bumps or Bruises.

Sprains or sores, burns or scalds, wound or cuts, letter or eczema, all quickly cured by Baumer Salve, the most healing medicine in the world. Nothing else "just as good." Clarke & Kenney.

Does It Pay To Buy Cheap.

A cheap remedy for coughs and colds is all right, but you want something that will relieve and cure the more severe and dangerous results of throat and lung troubles. What shall you do? Go to a warmer and more regular climate? Yes if possible; if not possible for you, then in either case take the ONLY remedy that has been introduced in all civilized countries with success in severe throat and lung troubles, "Boschee's German Syrup." It not only heals and stimulates the tissues to destroy the germ disease, but allays inflammation, causes easy expectoration, gives a good night's rest, and cures the patient. Try one bottle. Recommended many years by all druggists in the world. Sold by dealers in all civilized countries. oct-27-ly

You can spell it cough, cough, cough, kauf, kauf, cough, or kaugh, but the only harmless remedy that quickly cures it is One Minute Cough Cure. W. T. Brooks.

The emergency bags sent by a church society to Kansas soldiers in the Philippines contained among the necessities a box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, the well known cure for piles, injuries and skin diseases. The ladies took care to obtain the original DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve knowing that all the counterfeits are worthless. W. T. Brooks.

It Is a Curse.

Constipation is a curse and afflicts too great a portion of the American people. There is no excuse for it either, as we sell a remedy that will banish the curse, and with moderate use will keep you well. It is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Sold in 10c, 50c and $1.00 size. For sale by G. S. Varden.

Large sun spots, astronomers say, caused the extreme heat this summer, and doctors declare nearly all the prostrations were induced by disorders of the stomach. Good health follows good digestion. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat. If you have indigestion or dyspepsia it will quickly relieve and permanently cure you. W. T. Brooks.

SORES and Ulcers

That old sore or ulcer, which has been a source of pain, worry and anxiety to you for five or ten years—maybe longer—doesn't heal because you are not using the proper treatment, but are trying to cure it with salves and washes. While these are soothing and relieve pain to some extent, no real, permanent good can come from their use, because the disease is in the blood and far beyond the reach of external applications.

A sore heals promptly when the blood is in good condition, but never if it is diseased. The tendency of these old sores and ulcers is to grow worse, spreading and eating deeper into the flesh. They are a constant drain upon the system, gradually but surely ruin the health and sap the very life. A person's capacity for work or pleasure is soon lost in the great desire and search for something to cure. S. S. S. makes a rapid and permanent cure of old sores and ulcers, and is the only medicine that does, because no other can reach deep-seated blood troubles. Ordinary Sarsaparilla and potash mixtures are too weak and watery to overcome a deadly poison that has taken possession of the blood. Do not waste valuable time experimenting with them.

A Gunshot Wound. "Some years ago I was shot in the left leg, receiving what I considered only a slight wound. It developed into a running sore and gave me a great deal of pain. I was treated by many doctors, and concluded to give it a trial. The result was truly gratifying. S. S. S. seemed to get right at the trouble, and forced the poison out of my blood; soon afterwards the sore healed up and was cured sound and well. I now have perfect use of the leg, which was swollen and very stiff for a long time. J. H. McBRAYER, Lawrenceburg, Ky."

S. S. S. is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known; it is made of roots and herbs of wonderful purifying properties, which no poison can resist. S. S. S. quickly and effectually clears the blood of all morbid, unhealthy humors, and the old, troublesome sores heal. At the same time the general health is invigorated and built up. When a little scratch or hurt fails to heal readily, you may be sure your blood is bad. S. S. S. will soon put it in order and keep it so.

Our Medical Department is in charge of experienced physicians, who have made blood diseases a life study. If you will write them about your case, they will gladly furnish all information or advice wanted, without any charge whatever. Address SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

Making Caricatures.

The way in which some artists can distort features without making them unrecognizable is certainly very remarkable. Thomas Nast possessed this faculty to an extraordinary degree and he had a very peculiar way of adding new faces to his mental photograph gallery. When a fresh subject would arise in politics, for instance, he would invent some pretext to call upon him at his office or house and hold him in conversation as long as possible, studying his features.

When he took his departure he would purposely leave his cane. Once outside Nast would make a hasty pencil sketch on a card and would usually find that his memory was deficient as to some detail. He would then return, ostensibly for the cane, and another look at the victim would enable him to perfect his sketch. After that he had the man forever.

When Joe Keppler was alive he used to make frequent trips to Washington for the purpose of seeing statesmen whom he wanted to draw. He was very clever at catching likenesses and scarcely ever referred to a photograph.

A Famous Duel.

A duel was fought in Texas by Alexander Shott and John S. Nott. Nott was shot and Shott was not. In this case it is better to be Shott than Nott. There was a rumor that Nott was not shot, but Shott avows that he was not, which proves either that the shot Shott shot at Nott was not shot or that Nott was shot notwithstanding.

I may be made to appear on trial that the shot Shott shot Nott or, as accidents with firearms are frequent, it may be possible that the shot Shott shot Nott himself, when the whole affair would resolve itself into its original element, and Shott would be shot and Nott would be not.

We think, however, that the shot Shott shot Nott, not Shott, but Nott. Anyway, it is hard to tell who was shot.

Mexican Theater Etiquette.

In a Mexican theater women always go bareheaded and the men wear their hats all the time the curtain is closed. During the performance they remove them.

Frequently men rise in their seats and sweep the tiers of boxes with large glasses. It is considered something of an honor to have the glasses of a well below leveled at your box.

Smoking is permitted in all theaters. —City of Mexico Correspondence.

Liquid Glue.

To produce liquid glue which will keep for years break pieces of glue and place in a bottle with some whisky, cork tightly and set aside for a few days. This should be ready for use without the application of heat, except in very cold weather, when the bottle should be placed in hot water for a few minutes before using the glue.

Just a Way of Hers.

"You must not think, young man," said the corn fed philosopher, "that a young woman doesn't know anything just because she has a habit of asking foolish questions that give you a chance to impart information with a superior air."—Indianapolis Press.

Went a Little Too Far.

A commercial traveling man landed at Edinburgh, Scotland, one Saturday night, too late to get out of town for Sunday. The next day he found that there was actually no form of amusement in the whole city to assist him in whiling away the day. He went to the proprietor of the hotel to see if he could suggest a way of passing the remainder of the day.

The landlord took pity on the stranger and took him to one of the rooms in the house in which a number of Scotchmen were playing a game called "nap," which is a sort of modification of "seven up." They were playing for a shilling a point, so that the game was a pretty stiff one. The stranger got in the game and played very cautiously, for he was quite sure that the players, or at least some of them, were cheating. One solemn faced Scot, he was especially sure, he caught cheating a number of times. He began whistling a part of some vagrant tune. The Scot who had been cheating arose from the table and threw down the cards.

"What is the matter?" the other players asked.

"I'm gangin' awa'," the Scot answered, glaring at the stranger. "I'll play cards w' no mon that whistles on the Sabbath."

Question Answered.

Yes August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers, and grandmothers, never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of Appedictis. Nervous Prostration or Heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. Sold by dealers in all civilized countries. oct-27-ly

A marriage ceremony was performed in Toronto recently, with a substitute for the ring which, though odd and amusing, was appropriate for the occasion. The couple went over from the American side of the St. Lawrence river, but forgot to take a ring. As there was no ring to be had in the house the resourceful clergyman sent for his wife's sewing scissors and, with the finger clasp, completed the ceremony.

Drinks and Thirst.

It is a mistake to suppose that cold drinks are necessary to relieve thirst. Very cold drinks, as a rule, increase the feverish condition of the mouth and stomach and so create thirst. Experience shows it to be a fact that hot drinks relieve thirst and "cool off" the body when it is in an abnormally heated condition better than ice cold drinks."

Saturday, Sunday and Monday are the favorite days in the week for marriage—Sunday in rural districts and Saturday in towns. Sunday weddings seem to be generally less numerous than they were, while the number which take place on Saturday are greatly on the increase.
